Barcelona v Porto
Champions League winners Barcelona meet Europa League champions Porto in the 36th Super Cup at the Stade Louis II in Monaco, the venue for this event since 1998. With three wins and four times as runners up Barcelona appear to be the team to beat despite their Champions League-winner status. Porto however are without last seasons manager AVB who moved to Chelsea in this summer's biggest managerial shake-up

Champions League

Who could forget Barcelona's demolition of Manchester United in last year's Champions League final at Wembley in what was a display of simple football brilliance. This year's finale will be staged at the Allianz Arena, the home of Bayern Munich, where Europe's best of the best will meet up on the 19th May 2012 and do their best to dazzle us once again.

ATP US Open 2011

Novak Djokovic's rise from ever present semi-finalist to Grand Slam winner has been epic and despite Rafa Nadal's ESPY best player award the Serbian can confidently relish his world number one status. Last year's final was the first not to feature Roger Federer since 2004 but this may be a slam too far for the Swiss as he looks to add to his haul of five US Open titles.

Manchester United v Arsenal

There are widespread concerns over Arsenal Football Club having sold two of their star players, a 2-0 home drubbing against Liverpool and no new signings in the offing to compensate. So a trip to Old Trafford to face Manchester United isn't really what's on Arsene Wenger's wishlist this week. On the other hand, United have powered to two out of two league wins so far and the Community Shield to boot.

Celebrity Big Brother

Big Brother rears its ugly head once again with some, err, celebrities, apparently - and a bouncing boyband kind of thing called Jedward. So if you can take it longer than the housemates themselves and if you can recognise any of them then get stuck in to Channel 5 at ten o'clock nightly and let battle commence! Ugh.
