Australian Open 2011

The last time Tiger Woods won a tournament was in 2009 and following his much publicised marriage break-up his form has waned and he now finds himself out of the top 50 for the first time since he was a 20 year-old tour rookie. So finding himself in the lead of the Australian Open going into the weekend might be the start of something special.

England v Spain

It's international friendlies week with England facing World Champions Spain where England coach Fabio Capello will use the opportunity to blood some new talent in the shape of Daniel Sturridge and Jason Rodwell. More interestingly the planning for Wayne Rooney's absence from the early stages of Euro2012 will start to take shape as the tournament proper is now only seven months away.

Heineken Cup 2011

Last year's winners Leinster start as favourites for this the champions league of European rugby and face the cream of England, Wales, Scotland, France, Italy and of course their homeland of Ireland. Old foes and last year's finalists Northampton Saints reoppose as well as rugby's royalty and top seeds of Toulouse, Munster, Cardiff, Biarritz and Leicester. Look forward to good, fast, running rugby!
