Rangers v Hearts
The Scottish Premier League kicks off this weekend with Glasgow Rangers hosting Edinburgh's Hearts as the big opener. Hearts' challenge as ever is to break into the top two but the void between them and their target looks ever wider and was demonstrated by the 29-point difference between themselves and second-place Celtic last season.

Hibernian v Celtic

The M8 will be busy this weekend as Celtic fans travel east to Edinburgh to visit Hibernian whilst Hearts fans headed west to play Rangers. Both Hibs and Celtic will view last season as a big disappointment with Celtic missing out on the title by a point and Hibs languishing in the bottom six. The hosts will feel uneasy about such a stiff opening test while other clubs are circling for their manager Colin Calderwood.

Scottish Premier League

The Auld Firm dominates the Scottish Premier League as ever with the blue side of Glasgow currently title-holders and leading their rivals Celtic 7-6 in SPL crowns. Rangers completed a hat-trick of championships in 2011 only a point ahead of Celtic so the tables might just be turning in favour of the green and white as the competition gets ever more fierce.

F1 German Grand Prix

Even when Red Bull fail to win a race they succeed in grabbing in the headlines following Fernando Alonso's Silverstone victory and Mark Webber's submission to team orders. The championship horse appears to have bolted however so it's race by race results that will capture our attention and with the Prancing Horse looking bold again and the Maclarens still with a point to prove we could be in for some fun at the Nurburgring.
