Manchester United v Manchester City

These two need no introduction and it's the Red v Blue Manchester clash we've been looking forward to. Both clubs have had successful midweek Champions League outings but the intensity of this domestic fixture will be more than any European league can provide. United will be confident at home having won 24 out of the last 25 but City will want to stay top of the Premier League at all costs.

World Cup 2011

France take on the All Blacks in the Rugby World Cup final having slipped in the back door as a result of a highly dubious refereeing decision which will keep the rugby world chattering for a very long time to come. New Zealand on the other hand suffer from no such debate and have earned their place in the final by right. Some say that France don't merit the place but the final scoreline will provide the evidence.

Not only will the gridiron action be first class but it's rumoured that none other than Madonna will make an appearance - as the halftime entertainment, that is.
